Freshers' Show Update

EF: We've done a run in the Annex, and it's looking [redacted]. We're doing well on ticket sales as well.

CT: Emily, Charlie and I are getting producer things sorted.

LE: We'll be changing our cover photos to support the show!

Small Show Update

GT: We're doing a Staggered Act 1 run.

JM: We're more worried that things are going really well.

GT: We'll get to intensive and realised we've missed half the show.

AM: Elle has come in and talked to the cast, so we've cleared up any issues.

Spring Show Update

AB: Still happening.

CT: We've blocked almost a third of the show.

JB: Would it make sense for me to come in on Sunday since most people will be there?

General nodding, room appreciates Joe Barr's comment.

As usual he's contributed in a way that nobody could have imagined, what a man he is, thank you Joe for your contribution to this otherwise dull committee meeting.

CT: Annabelle taught her first dance and it was amazing and quickly taught.

Treasurer Update

AM: I met with Rob to go through the Edinburgh money; we talked with Lydia and Emily and after we've taken out the society contributions which should give each society about a grand. So people will be getting their money back from their contributions! You'll all be £25 richer.

AB: I don't remember if I gave the contribution.

Everyone except Andy will be £25 richer, although he was never £25 worse off.

AM: In terms of funding, have people thought about how much and for what reasons they'd like to make an application?

Since Brexit has happened and Apple prices have gone up, the wear and tear of my laptop whilst doing these minutes is now worth more.

We have Malteasers for munch. Andy likes Malteasers. Lydia looks like the disappointed mum who had the child she never wanted to have.

AM: To segue in to the social department, we've paid the ball money!

Thanks Elle, doing my job for me.

Social Update

EF: The deadline for doing a seating plan and menu choices, and how many non-dining tickets, will be set 2 weeks before the event.

GT: Have I done menu choices?

GT goes on to clarify that she had a dream about messaging David menu choices and another about Elliot getting stabbed twice, in other news Sanity Workshops coming before Christmas!

DM: They sent us a reply suggesting that if one got wine, everyone would have to get it; instead we'll be letting them know how many of each bottle we want.

DM: Winchester trip won't be happening since we won't have time unfortunately.

CT: I want to go to Oxygen Free Jump! Nobody takes me anywhere interesting anymore.

Room stares at me.

EF: We've had interest on doing a karaoke night from the Talking Heads!

---

Development Update

BN: We did a workshop and it was really christmassy and nice and great.

GT: I've sent a follow-up email confirming Bar 2. There's also these signs popping up about booking the Bridge for Christmas, it's a different system this year so that's why we didn't think we could get it.

GT: The accent workshop will be more developed as we go along, developing accents depending on whoever turns up.

Tours Update

AB: Phoebe and I are yet to meet up to organise the Edinburgh meeting/discussion event for informing Freshers'/potential interested individuals.

Web and Promotions Update

No Update.

Society Update
